The spring term at the East school, beginning March 31, 1913, was taught by Miss Ida L. Blossom, of Cliftondale, Mass., who continued her good work of the previous two terms.

The School Board expected Miss Blossom to return for the year beginning September, 1913, but about a week before school was to commence word was received from her that she had secured a better paying position elsewhere.

It was found necessary to change the time for the beginning of this school from September 2 to September 9, in order to allow time to get another teacher.

After much trouble in finding a suitable person for this position the Board was lucky in finally securing the services of Miss Mildred de Moulpied, of Manchester, N. H., a graduate of the State Normal school of Lowell, Mass.

Miss de Moulpied has proved herself to be a capable teacher in every way, and it has been a long time since the East school has had a teacher that has given such general satisfaction to both parents and School Board.

Miss Robie, at the West, and Miss Weare, at the South schools, still continue to give very satisfactory results and, as their work is so well known, it needs no further comment by the Board.

At the end of the school year, July 15, 1913, Stratham and Seabrook fell out of the supervisory district that had been formed by the four towns of Hampton, Hampton Falls, Stratham and Seabrook, and by so doing we lost the services of Mr. Lane as Superintendent, which was much regretted by all who believed in supervision of schools. It was impossible for Hampton and Hampton Falls to continue, as it requires twenty schools to secure state aid and even then the expense would have been too much.

Nothing more was done in regard to this matter until November, when the School Boards of Hampton and Hampton Falls received an invitation from the supervisory district of Hampstead, Raymond and Lee to join them, which, after careful consideration, was done.

Mr. Lane commenced his duties December 1, 1913, and for the following seven months to the end of the school year is to be paid by the district $70, one half of which comes from the state.

A new clock has been placed in the East school so that now all three schools are well equipped in the time line.

This school house has been reshingled and painted at a cost of $148.

The outside of the North school house has been put in good repair and painted at a cost of about $105. The school wagon was repaired and painted for $6.00.

New adjustable seats and desks have been provided for the South school at a cost of $93.00.

The East school has for several years been equipped with a good set of maps, while the other two were almost without anything of the kind, and in justice to them the School Board has placed a case containing eight maps in each of the other schools at a cost of $50, which was the least that a suitable set of maps could be bought for.

We believe that our schools are now well equipped with modern books and maps.

The school houses are all in good repair on the outside, and while the West and South are in good repairs on the inside, the East is in rather bad shape. The Board would recommend that about $50 be raised for inside repairs at this school.

The Selectmen are hereby notified that $300 will be needed for High school tuition, $110 for text books and supplies, and $5 for flags.

HENRY M. PRESCOTT,

Report of Superintendent of Schools

To the School Board and Citizens of Hampton Falls:

Herewith I submit my third annual report and the third in the series of reports of the District Superintendents.

During the past year progress has been made along several lines in local school development, and the recommendations of last year's report have nearly all been put into effect. The environment of the children has been made more attractive, more sanitary, and more cheerful and more inspiring.

It is the earnest request of the Superintendent that the citizens re-read several important portions of his last year's report, as they are as pertinent now as when written, viz.: The sections relating to attendance of children, the teaching of music, and the raising of a fund for the purpose of answering immediate needs in the spring until collection of taxes has been made,—this fund to be replaced and not to be drawn upon for any other purpose.

Our efficiency has grown during the past year, and we may confidently expect that still greater improvement will be shown under a consistent, constructive policy. The discipline and the grade of work done are constantly improving.

It is with regret that the Superintendent reports to your board that no pupil in the town had a perfect attendance record for the year ending July 15, 1913. This is an unfavorable showing as compared with the record of fifteen names of the year previous. Hence, the usual roll of honor is absent from its accustomed place in the annual report.

Attention should be called to the recent legislation relating to school attendance, making it obligatory upon all parents to see that their children attend school until they have finished the eight grades of the elementary schools, unless they reach the age of sixteen before they have completed the course, and can furnish satisfactory evidence that they can read and write well enough to enter the fifth grade.

Attention should likewise be called to the passage of laws, making it permissible for any school district to have medical supervision. These laws mark a step forward in the school legislation of this state. Medical supervision is not a new idea in educational procedure. It has been employed for many years in the most enlightened countries of Europe, and is now in general use over a large portion of the United States. Already a large number of counties and states have made it compulsory.

The children who suffer from some physical weaknesses, as poor teeth, adenoids, enlarged tonsils, are more numerous than is generally suspected. If children frequently or habitually breathe through the mouth, or are subject to frequent colds, or show defects of pronunciation and hearing, or if they appear mentally dull or slow most of the time, adenoids are almost surely present. Parents frequently do not notice these defects as does the teacher, and are slow to admit that trouble exists. When any such weakness is known, the consulting of a physician may prevent lifelong misery. Oftentimes a rapid change in disposition and mental ability follows efficient treatment. It has been shown elsewhere that one fourth of all school children suffer from some physical ailment, and can be relieved or cured, if cared for in time.

The employment of a physician, who shall visit each school at frequent intervals, who shall examine eyes, nose, throat, ears and lungs of each pupil at least once a year and report, through the teacher, to the parents, if trouble is found, would be an excellent investment for the community. As a means for stopping the spread of contagion, and for detecting incipient diseases in the children it is most efficacious and salutary. A number of contiguous towns could profitably unite in the employment of a reputable physician at small expense. Rightly considered, the absence and illness of children is a great loss and waste of public wealth. Conservation of resources should therefore include medical inspection and supervision.

During this year some steps have been taken to more fully equip our schools to meet the requirement of the state programme of studies for the elementary schools of New Hampshire.

There is sufficient reason to believe that our effectiveness in the "Three R's" has grown within the year, and that a still further increase of power may be hoped for. Effort has been made to have the most practical phases of the subject-matter of the usual common school studies taken up thoroughly by the boys and girls. With this end in view some texts and other devices for the use of teachers have been placed in each room. Common business forms and methods, letters and social invitations are studied and practised. Facts of the daily life and the environment are emphasized and correlated with the other subject-matter.

Books used for the teaching of the Palmer Business penmanship have been placed in the hands of the pupils. This method is the muscular arm movement recommended for adoption in my last year's report.

The recent widespread interest in various forms of vocational training has come from the realization that modern life has brought with it new conditions, and made impossible in the most of homes the excellent training given the boys and the girls of a half century ago in the domestic and the manual arts.

New Hampshire has already taken a prominent place in the development of schools giving courses in vocational training. Many of the rural schools have taken up work in cooking, sewing, manual training, or wood-making, and in elementary agriculture. The state programme of studies for elementary schools has outlined courses in these subjects. I recommend that an introduction of sewing and handwork be made. The education of the hand and the eye should accompany that of the intellect. If properly organized these courses should be of little and possibly no expense whatever.

Articles made by the boys and the girls themselves are the best, because the necessary self-activity, the self-confidence, and the interest aroused, are of themselves educative. In many towns the work has been made self-supporting.

The State Department of Public Instruction has published a number of excellent pamphlets concerning the work done in these subjects. The Superintendent will gladly bring these papers to the attention of those citizens who may wish to see and to read them.

In conclusion I wish to express my appreciation of the intelligent, helpful, and inspiring support of the members of the Board, of the unfailing loyalty and the untiring efforts of the teachers, of the generous and kindly co-operation of the parents and the citizens of the town. Such support, such loyalty and persistence, such co-operation is a source of inspiration to the Superintendent. He cannot but feel hopeful for the future. It has given him courage to initiate moves looking toward greater service and efficiency on the part of the schools.

Respectfully submitted,

ALBERT T. LANE.
